ORGANISATION OF ISLAMIC CONFERENCE

A GUIDE BOOK OF ISLAMIC CULTURAL INSTITUTIONS

BY RESEARCH CENTRE FOR
ISLAMIC HISTORY ART AND CULTURE

In Commemoration of Fifteenth Century Hijra

I N T R O D U C T I O N

The establishment of the Istanbul Research Centre was considered at the 7th Islamic Foreign Ministers Conference in 1976, and its establishment statute was accepted at the 9th ICFM in 1979. The formalities for its foundation are still in process. However, the Centre started functioning before the procedures were finalised. This subsidiary organisation of the OIC submitted its first work programme at the 11th ICFM and commenced its activities immediately before the legal, administrative, financial and diplomatic status formalities were solved.

Among the different activities various research programmes are directed by the Centre and conducted by scholars outside the Centre within the framework of its objectives. Meanwhile it was planned initially that the basis of a reference library and its complementary archives would be set up by the nucleus staff of the Centre and would be ready for the researchers and scholars by the time the establishment procedures were completed.

The Centre is of the opinion that setting up an archive unit on islamic cultural institutions which deal with islamic history, art and culture will be beneficial for the world of learning. Though there are many reference books on cultural institutions published in the West, they lack information on the subject of cultural institutions which are engaged in the field of islamic civilisation.

In view of the above points, one of the primary objectives of the Centre has been the publication of a reference book that will disseminate information on islamic cultural institutions based on its archive and reference library.

Starting from this point, the Centre has considered islamic cultural institutions in two categories. The first are the institutions such as libraries, archives, documentation and information centres, and museums which have cultural material like books, documents, objects and information. The second are the academies, research centres, associations and the like organisations where research on different aspects of islamic culture is conducted. Dividing institutions into these two groups may be a subject of academic discussion. There may be better ways of classification, but for practical purposes the Centre has decided to use this system.

To collect information about the islamic /cultural institutions the Centre has prepared two types of questionnaires, F.I and F.II. They were printed in the three official languages of the Organisation of the Islamic Conference , Arabic, English and French. These questionnaires were mailed to nearly one thousand addresses in July 1980. In the following months, only a limited number of replies were received. The reasons for the lack of sufficient response can be summarised as below :

1. Some addresses were incorrect.
2. Some of the questionnaires were lost in the mail.
3. Communication facilities in some countries were inadequate due to their internal situation. (An example of this is the mail sent to Chad. First it was posted from Turkey, Rome and Paris, then it was sent via Tunis. They were all returned. Since Chad does not have an official representation in Turkey, another group was sent through the Embassy of the Republic of Chad in Lebanon. No communication was received thereafter).
4. Some institutions did not reply because they did not see any similarity between their fields of activity and that of ours.
5. Impossibility of conducting a "field survey" in the member states. Cultural research about a member country can only be completed with the help of a local institution that would be willing to participate in our project and collect information on our behalf.

After the initial despatch of the questionnaires that were sent to various countries in July 1980, reminders together with another set of questionnaires were forwarded to some addresses that were checked and corrected. In some cases institutions were reached through personal contact. In spite of all our efforts only a limited number of the total have replied. Various ways of increasing the reponse to our questionnaires were tried.

We are including a list of the names of the institutions which still have not answered our questionnaires in this book. We are also publishing samples of our questionnaires and hope that institutions and individuals concerned with the islamic culture will be interested and assist us in this project.

It is evident that this type of an extensive research project cannot be completed in such a short time. It requires a longer period of intensive effort and literary search. However, we have decided to publish a small reference book from the data accumulated so far. It is the prototype of the one envisaged for the future and contains only part of the information collected. We are presenting it with the hope that it will encourage the participation and assistance of other institutions and intellectuals and speed up the response from the institutions which have not returned our questionnaires.

In this book countries are listed in alphabetical order. Users of this book should note that answers are numbered according to the related numbers of questions on the forms (F.I and F.II), that are included. Detailed information that has not been published in this book will be available on request.

We are doing this research not only for the member states but also for other countries like Central Asia, India, Spain and the Balkan countries where islamic civilisation has spread.

We wish to convey our appreciation and thanks to all institutions, their administrators who have assisted us by sending information and the diplomatic corps of member states of OIC who have forwarded our questionnaires through official channels.
